A PEACEFUL, HAPPY

NEW YEAR

The Editor of the Bow Island Review:

I wish to extend to you and your readers a Christmas Greeting. We are counting our friends and thinking of our nearest of kin and expressing good and pleasant wishes to our associates; and in it all there is peace and harmony and joy. We would emphasize the aspect of Christmas that tend to increase this joy. The "Christ Spirit is the Christmas Spirit." He, who came to announce Peace and Goodwill to all the world, shows us the way and tells us we may enter into His joy, righteousness and Love working together produce the atmosphere of Heaven. Let us love work to the breaking of every separating barrier and Righteousness be established (possibly) through forgiveness that we may indeed wish every one
"Well," then let us extend our wish.
"O that the world might taste and see."
I believe this is the real joy of Christ;
and I wish for all the full measure of Christmas joy and gladness.

Sincerely yours,

Chas. G. Hockin

Lloyd George Tells Of His Part In The Irish Settlement

London.—Contrasted strikingly with Britain's royal pomp and splendour displayed in the House of Lords, was the scene in the House of Commons a few hours later when, without ceremony, but with evident consciousness of powers and influence, the members heard the Prime Minister render an account of his stewardship and the Government's part in the Irish settlement.

For an hour and three-quarters Mr. Lloyd George spoke to crowded benches and jammed galleries. The only touch of color in the ancient legislative chamber was the brilliant red-coated uniform of Col. Sir Samuel Hoare, who moved the reply to the speech from the throne.

It was not an oration like that of October 21, when the Premier, having been challenged, presented to the country the alternative of war or negotiation with Ireland and won the day by a division overwhelmingly favoring the Government's policy; his role today was one simply narrating the problems faced by the delegations with a description of the way they were handled.

Early in his address Mr. Lloyd George alluded to those inclined to interrupt him. When an Ulster member interrogated him on "allegiance" Mr. Lloyd George having said that the status of Ireland was that of a free state, with allegiance to the King, he turned and faced the Ulsterite and declared emphatically: "Yes, allegiance to the King and swearing allegiance to the King." He then asked the member to refrain from interruption, as his task of exposition was difficult and one which he detailed. The Prime Minister was deeply impressive as he came near the end, when in slow tones and solemn manner, he drew a picture of the British Imperial War Cabinet at which a vacant chair was waiting for Ireland and looked to the future when Britain's fears would be Ireland's aid, and Britain's victory, Ireland's joy.

Suggests Direct Wireless Service

Plan For Direct Communication Between Britain and Australia Being Investigated

Melbourne.—The Federal Parliament has appointed a committee with authority to investigate and approve a plan for the establishment of direct wireless communication between Great Britain and Australia. Interest in the undertaking has been stimulated by the facility with which Australian stations received President Harding's round-the-world wireless message, and by the fact that the press associations received without relay messages sent from Capetown, Wales.

London.—Except when atmospheric conditions are unusually bad, wireless news messages are now being received daily from Australia by way of the post office station at Lendfield, the first station of the Imperial wireless chain. The postmaster-general points out that the experts who are advising the Government in regard to the construction of additional stations of the Imperial chain express the opinion that greater reliability and cheapness would be ensured by the use of intermediate stations about 2,500 miles apart which would be able to maintain communication when direct service is impossible.

British Miners Working Overtime

Greatest Rush of Business Since Post War Days

London.—Scottish coal mine owners have a rush of orders at present that has not been equaled since the war days. Steamers are loading coal day and night and the miners are working overtime. The situation in South Wales is similar to that at the Scottish mines.

In consequence of the rush of business, coal prices are rising considerably. The increase is largely due to continental and other foreign orders for coal.

Investigate Condition in West Indies
Tingston, Jamaica.—A mission, headed by Major Wood, has been sent here by the British Government to investigate economic and political conditions in the West Indies. The coming of the British mission has created considerable interest in view of the frequent discussions about possible sale of the West Indies to the U.S.

King George Gives Speech From Throne

Special Session of Parliament to Consider Irish Question

London.—The special session of Parliament, called to consider the Irish peace settlement was opened by King George. In his speech from the throne he said: "It is my earnest hope that by the articles of agreement now submitted to you, the strife of centuries may be ended."

The text of the King's speech was as follows: "My lords and members of the House of Commons. I have summoned you to meet at this unusual time in order that the articles of agreement which have been signed by my ministers and the Irish delegation can at once be submitted for your approval. No other business will be brought before you at the present session.

"It was with heartfelt joy that I learned of the agreement reached after negotiations protracted many months and affecting not only the welfare of Ireland but of the British and Irish races throughout the world. It is my earnest hope that by the articles of agreement now submitted to you the strife of centuries may be ended and that Ireland as a free partner in the commonwealth of nations joining the British Empire will secure fulfilment of her national ideal."

ended and that Ireland as a free partner in the commonwealth of nations joining the British Empire will secure fulfilment of her national ideal."

Three Great Powers Come To Agreement On Naval Question

Rebellion In India Is Collapsing

London.—An Indian office statement says the position of the principal Mughal rebel leaders in Malabar and their followers is becoming desperate. There are increasing signs that the rebellion is collapsing, at least as far as active resistance is concerned. The remainder of the fighting gangs are penned in the hills by the troops. The steady stream of surrenders continues.

Switzerland Bans German Aircraft

Military Machines Not Allowed Over Swiss Territory

Berne.—German military aircraft is prohibited from flying over Swiss territory in a notice just issued by the Federal Air Force. The ban also applies to civil aircraft registered in Switzerland, but included in the class of airplanes prohibited in Germany, provided their papers do not contain special certificates from the German Minister of Transportation, showing they were constructed before January 16, 1920.

A new air service connecting the connection between London and the Swiss winter resorts has recently been opened by a French concern. The new air line extends from Paris to Lausanne. It is at present necessary for passengers from London to remain over night in Paris, but in the near future continuous service will be provided.

China Proposes to Buy Shantung Railway

Japanese Delegates Have Cabled Offer To Tokio

Washington.—The counter proposal by China for the purchase from Japan of the Kiao Chow Tsinan Fu Railroad in Shantung province, has been cabled to Tokio by the Japanese armaments conference delegation which has been carrying on direct conversation with the Chinese delegates in an effort to settle the Shantung problem outside the conference.

The Japanese are said to have considered it necessary to receive instructions from home on this matter which is deemed the most important in the negotiations. China is understood to be ready to furnish bonds as security for the payment, but the Japanese are said to feel that some security further than bonds should be given. The consultation with Tokio may delay definite action on the railroad subject.

Ships Train Of Cattle

Yorlton Merchant Sends 723 Feeders To Be Finished For American Market

Yorlton.—Henry Broadman, prominent merchant here, has shipped from his farm west of town, a trainload of cattle to Iceland, South Dakota. The train comprises 26 cars, containing 723 head of big feeders. These will be finished at their destination for the American markets.

The train attracted considerable attention, being plastered with three large banners inscribed, "This trainload of cattle is the property of Henry Broadman, of Yorlton."

Move To Form A Western Freight Classification Body

Calgary.—Definite steps toward the formation of a Western Canadian Freight Classification Committee were taken at a conference between W. B. Langdon, general freight manager of the C.P.R., and Major W. M. Kirkpatrick, assistant freight agent for western lines of the C.P.R. and members of the Board of Trade. Mr. Langdon is on his way to British Columbia from Montreal, outlined what had been accomplished by the classification committee of Eastern Canada toward revising the present classification code. More than half the articles have been classified by the eastern committee so far as the minimum rates and ratings are concerned. The ruling rates in Washington.—Agreement of the "big three" naval powers on the "five-five-three" naval ratio plan was officially announced at the State Department.

Under the plan Japan retains the superdreadnought Mitsu instead of the old battleship Hiei, and the United States retains two additional ships of the Maryland class instead of the Delaware and North Dakota. Great Britain, as an equivalent, will build two superdreadnoughts similar to the Maryland and Mitsu types, but of a strategy design, scrapping four old battleships of the original retained list suggested by the Hughes plan.

The agreement includes a status quo understanding on fortifications of the Pacific Islands in open waters and exclusive of Hawaii and islands off the Japanese, Australian and New Zealand coasts.

To Retain British Citizenship

Ulster Definitely Rejects Invitation to Enter Free State

Dublin.—The Ulster cabinet's reply to Mr. Lloyd George's letter of December 6, definitely rejects invitation to enter the Irish Free State. It protests against Ulster's interests being involved in the Irish settlement without special certificates from the German Minister of Transportation, showing they were constructed before January 16, 1920.

Protest is made against what is asserted to be violence done to the spirit of the 1920 act which, it is declared, was based on equal rights and privileges for the north and south. It is contended that the altered act is not based on equal rights and is not acceptable to Ulster, while the financial provisions of the agreement would introduce tariff wars with England and internal divisions in Ireland.

For these and other reasons Ulster's reply, it is said, will retain her British citizenship and refuse to subordinate herself to the Sinn Fein government.

France Willing To Wait For Payments

Recognize Germany Must Be Helped To Adjust Finances

Paris.—France is willing to forego temporary cash reparations payments from Germany, a high official in the French foreign office told the Associated Press.

The official said there was general recognition by the press and in French officialdom that Germany must be aided and possibly compelled to set her financial house in order if future indemnities payments were to be forthcoming.

Three U.S. Boats Forfeited to Canada

Were Found Fishing In Canadian Territorial Waters

Vancouver.—Three United States fishing boats, found fishing in Canadian territorial waters last July, were declared forfeited to the crown by Mr. Justice Martin, sitting as judge of the admiralty court. The boats were worth from $600 to $700 each. They will be auctioned on behalf of the Dominion Department of Fisheries, by whom the seizure was made.

Maintain Present Hours
Melbourne.—The commonwealth arbitration court refused the request of the industrial unions for a general reduction of the working week in Australia to 44 hours.

Last night I stayed awake to see what Santa Claus would bring. I heard a noise above me and the merry sleigh-bells ring. Perhaps it was a reindeer's hoof That made the snow fall from the roof

Benares Welcomed Prince Planned to Seize Dan's Castle

In Spite of Ghandi's Orders For a Boycott

Benares, India.—When the Prince of Wales arrived here a "hartal" had been proclaimed but it was practically ignored by the natives who thronged the streets. The programme which had been arranged in honor of the Prince was carried out without a hitch and he left for Nepal to hunt big game.

London.—The magnificent reception accorded the Prince of Wales at Benares following the disappointing display at Allahabad, says a Boston dispatch, illustrates the indecisiveness of the Indian unrest. The warm reception to Benares is regarded as of special significance inasmuch as Benares is a holy city. The Hindu turned out in thousands to greet the Prince in disobedience of Hindustan strike orders from the Hindu leader Ghandi, whom the extremist element hold up as Mahatma (Saint). After formal reception by the Maharajah, the Prince drove in a glittering silver coach to the Hindu University, where he received an honorary degree of doctor of literature.

Benares Welcomed Prince Planned to Seize Dan's Castle

Unemployed In Copenhagen Wanted It For Sleeping Place

Copenhagen.—The police have discovered plans showing that the homeless unemployed in Copenhagen contemplated seizure of Christiansburg Castle, which is the King's official residence and the meeting place of the Danish Parliament, intending to use it as a sleeping place.

The plans were taken from the persons of men leading the unemployed workmen's organizations and who were arrested for reconnecting gas services which the authorities had ordered disconnected.

Pool Battle For Home
New York.—Marshall Foch has sailed on the French liner Paris for home. Another passenger was Rene Viviani, former French premier who is returning home from the Washington arms conference.

Cancel Club Licenses
Vancouver.—Following convictions for infraction of the Liquor Act, the licenses of 13 clubs in Vancouver were cancelled by the Government.

Falling Rock Kills A Child on Train

VANCOUVER, B. C. - While a Westbound Passenger Train on the Canadian Pacific Railway was going through a tunnel near North Bend, B. C., a boulder striking it crashed through glass and woodwork and struck a young child killed him instantly.

Quite a lot of employment could be given to men out of work winning the Cuts and removing vast quantities of rock that is much too near the railway tracks in B.C. to be permanently safe, when one has gone through these places it has given them the creeps to see huge rocks all cracked and looking as though they would plunge down at the slightest vibration of the train you are riding in—serious thought should be given to these dangers to the travelling public.

When one reads of the Courage and Devotion to Duty shown by Dr. Cairns and his driver Roy Beattie of Bow Island, when answering the S.O.S. call from the Broad Ocean, as it were, of this big expanse of Prairie, the call of strikes humanity, nine miles north of Winnipeg last Sunday—one is filled with admiration and pen fails to eulogize sufficiently such magnificent deeds—deeds that take rank with the noblest actions of history.

Quietly and without any fuss, just because humanity called, these two took their lives in their hands and passed out into the biting Arctic weather (many degrees below zero) with roads seemingly made impassable (except to the brave) by a recent blizzard and they fought their way for Eighteen miles and Eighteen miles back to eulogize sufficiently such magnificent deeds—deeds that take rank with the noblest actions of history.

Just imagine if another blizzard had come up or if they had got into such dense banks of snow that they could not have gone forward or back to Bow Island, their lives would have paid the sacrifice.

And how often and often before this, have these two, all unknown to others, been out in the day or the darkest of nights, at the call of Duty, fighting with the rigors of a Canadian Winter?

Bravery is one thing but Bravery plus the saving of the Call of Humanity and Duty is quite another thing.

Marshal Ney on the field of battle, was given that glorious title "Bravest of the brave," by his Emperor.

And the Review and all people that read this, will say the same. These two quiet and unassuming gentlemen, that they are in the ranks of the "Bravest of the brave."

Foster the weather, prophet predicts a great rise in temperature from 20th. to 28th. December and after that predicts one of the most severe and dangerous Storms of the Winter and he was everyone to get ready for it, especially those people with Stock to look after.

These are the kind of days, when it is hazardous to life and limb to be far from home and shelter.

The wise man will take heed.

How The Stocking Was Stocked

A Christmas Story

I was getting tired and worn, after a long season's work, and I felt sad when I thought of my little master, he had not been very careful with me, it is true, but yet I loved him dearly. His mother bought me in the spring when big placards about stock-taking sales were in all the windows in town. Ever since then I have been busy except for a few weeks in summer when it was too hot for Tommie to wear me. When he was wearing me he would run about the streets, which was very jolly. Then washday would find me in the hot soapy water and hung up afterwards to dry. After that Tommie's mother used to put her dear gentle hand down my throat and feel me all over to see if I had any holes in my skin. At first they were very small holes, and she soon darned them up and in a day or two I was out on the streets with Tommie. One morning he fell on some slippery rocks, and a whole piece of me was missing when he got up. His poor little knee was cut and bleeding. I had only been washed the day before, but that day I had another rubbing, and the next afternoon I had the biggest dose of darning I ever took in my life. Often there has been extra wash day especially for me, and all this has told on my general health. I was noticing only the other day how pale I am getting.

But you will wonder why I felt sad about Tommie, and I must tell you. It was almost Christmas time. All the children were talking about the visit of Santa Claus. Tommie talked about him, too, and that made me unhappy. You see, a bad boy, being awake one night when he was asleep and had heard his father and mother talking, Tommie's father had been ill for nearly three months, and there was very little money left to buy food for the family. That was why Tommie's mother kept on darning me so carefully, though she knew how tired and worn I was getting. That was why I tried so hard to keep my little master's sturdy legs dry and warm. I was indeed thankful that the weather had been mild, for if Jack Frost had come to town I knew I was too thin and weak to be able to keep him from biting Tommie's toes.

Tommie's mother and father talked in low voices that night, but I lay still and heard what they said.

"John, dear," said the mother, "I am very much afraid Santa Claus will not visit our house this Christmas."

"The boy will be so disappointed," said Mr. John, quietly.

"I know," agreed the mother with a sigh. They sat still without speaking for a minute or two. Then the mother looked up and smiled bravely. "Nothing matters, John," she said, "now that you are getting better. Tommie will soon get over his disappointment. He's a good lad. I feel as weak as a kitten," said Mr. John. "But cheer up! Are we down-hearted? No!"

"No!" echoed his wife, and she put out her hand and patted his shoulder tenderly.

Now I must tell you what happened on Christmas eve—the most surprising thing I ever saw. I was hanging limply over the foot of Tommie's bed, and the big piece of the house were just going to put out the oil lamp when a knock was heard at the front door. Our house has only two rooms so we all heard it plainly.

"Who on earth comes here at this time of night?" exclaimed Mr. John, but it was the mother who opened the door. "There's no one outside," she said wonderingly, and was about to close the door again, when she saw a parcel lying right in the middle of the step, she picked it up and brought it into the lighted room. I had a good look at it, it was tied up in brown paper, with a little bit of holly and a label fixed on carefully. "Santa Claus wishes Tommie a happy Christmas," she read, and stopped. There were tears in her dear eyes. She pushed the parcel across the little table to her husband. "You open it," she said; we must put the things in his stocking." Mr. John coughed and blew his nose vigorously. "I guess Santa Claus could not wait to come in," he said. "He is a very busy man." Then they opened the parcel and picked me up. I opened my mouth just as wide as I possibly could and I ate up one thing after another till nothing more could I swallow: there were marbles and candy, and an orange, and a humming top, and a little book, and a handkerchief, and a pencil, and I don't know what else. I had no idea I had so much room inside! And last of all there was actually a new pair of stockings—stockings that looked, exactly like I did when I was young only perhaps a little taller. "You good fellows!" I said happily. "You will be able to keep Tommie's feet and legs warm. Any day now Jack Frost may be coming, and I know I cannot fight him off myself. How thankful I am to see you!"

The new stockings were hung up by my side at the foot of Tommie's bed, and next morning the little boy saw us waiting. I wish you could have seen Tommie's face! I was so happy that I wept tears of pure cashmere! Tommie was the happiest boy in that little town. No, there was no other boy who was even just a little bit happier with a knock about him, later when some little birds were telling each other the news of the day close by the window.

"Twelve-twelve!" said one, "did you see Dick White running down the street last night?" "Yes," said another, "He was laughing and whistling and singing this morning like the happiest boy alive."

"What's all about?" asked the third.

"Don't you know? Twelve-twelve! Santa Claus sent him with a parcel for our friend Tommie!"

The Bow Island and Burdett Reviews heartily endorse and urgently commend to the sympathetic attention of all of their readers the following item sent from the Forestry Branch, Department of the Interior, Canada.

Some of the items will appear each week.

FORESTRY LETTER "Spare O Spare The Trees"

The operators (under timber permits on Dominion forest reserves) are all conducting their operations more carefully. Stumps are cut low, trees are utilized as fully as possible, the brush is disposed of and the tracts operated are being left in good condition for protection against fire and for reproduction of the forest.

Annual Report, Director of Forestry, Ottawa.

Living forests provide us with wood material of all kinds for our homes and industries, but burned forests provide no lumber for the saw-mill, no work for the working man, no business for the merchant, and no freight for the railway or steamship. The moral is that everyone should be careful with fire in the woods.

DATES FOR AUCTION SALES

If you intend to have a Sale, be sure you leave the date at the Bow Island Review for D. M. Garrison - Auctioneer.

IF WE KNEW YOU AND YOU KNEW US

If we knew you and you knew us.

Both of us would be more righteous;

Both never having yet clasped hands.

Both often fail to understand.

That each intends to do what's right.

And treat each other "honor bright."

How little to complain or fuss

If we knew you and you knew us.

When'er we ship you by mistake.

Or in your bill some error make.

It sure would save a lot of fuss

If we knew you and you knew us.

Or when the checks don't come on time.

And Customers send us nary a line.

We'd wait without a bit of fuss

If we knew you and you knew us.

Or when some goods you "fire us back."

Or make a "kick" on this or that.

We'd take it in good part, we trust.

If we knew you and you knew us.

With Customers ten thousand strong

Occasionally things go wrong—

Sometimes our fault, sometimes their's—

Forbearance would decrease our cares;

Kind friend, how pleasant and how just

If we knew you and you knew us.

Then let us no doubting thoughts abide

Of firm good faith on either side;

Confidence to each other give,

Living ourselves let others live;

But any time you come this way,

That you will call we hope and pray;

We'll meet the train with our visitor's bus

And we'll know you and you'll know us.

WINNIFRED

From our own Correspondent

A fire, presumably from a spark from a small coal stove in the Union Bank building occupied temporarily by the Red Cross Society caused a furor of excitement in town on Saturday night Dec. 17th. Had it not been for the heroic efforts of the citizens, the whole town would have been wiped out as a blizzard was raging from the North East at the time.

Great excitement prevailed until the fire was finally extinguished, about fifty dollars worth of damage was done.

Gerald Hodgson who has been working in and about Tabor all summer returned home on Tuesday the 18th, to spend the holidays with his relatives.

Mr. J.H. Castle found it necessary to consult a physician in Medicine Hat on Tuesday last in regard to his physical condition, after an operation of a serious nature last Summer.

SUNDRIES

Don't be afraid of fresh air. It cannot of itself ever give anyone a cold in the head.

Don't forget exercise, and add as much fat as possible to your daily consumption of food.

Don't overburden yourself with thick cloths. Ventilation as well as warmth should be aimed at.

Don't trust yourself by the fire. This only heats one side of the body, while the other may be chilled by a current of cold air.

Don't treat a cold as a trivial matter. It may lead to influenza and serious illness.

Don't sneeze without covering your mouth with a handkerchief. A man with a cold can easily throw his poison left by a sneeze.

He had crossed the next morning there was a letter from Dad, the first he had received since he had left home. It had crossed the market and the whirr of the saw which has been silent for some time will soon be heard again.

Wonderful Skill Of Ancient Craftsmen Has Been Lost To World

One of the many lessons taught by museums is that clever craftsmanship is not a modern monopoly. Of the work done thousands of years ago is unapproachable today, and of the processes which were comparatively common then are now practically unknown.

There is in the Wellcome Historical Medical Museum, London, an exhibit which baffles the most skilled of modern embalmers. It consists of a number of human heads from Ebersdorf, each is perfect, and is rendered almost as if by the seal of the lips, which are sewn up, so that the "spirit" of the dead should not escape and do harm to the owner.

The museum in the Royal College of Surgeons contains another remarkable specimen of ancient workmanship. It is part of the wrapping from a mummy more than six thousand years old.

So perfect is this material that for a time its precise nature was a mystery; but ultimately it was found to be made of a substance which is known as papyrus. The fact that it is made of this, the finest that nature can produce is positively curious.

Equally wonderful is the Portland Vase, a British Museum treasure. It is a two thousand year old man living can reproduce it. The art of making has long been lost.

It is made, this vase, of two layers of glass, white on top and blue below; and the exquisite design is shown in blue. This was effected by cutting away all the glass where it was not wanted—a feat of well-nigh incredible difficulty owing to the fragility of the material. No other example of such workmanship is known to exist.

Just as infatigable is another British Museum treasure—a bronze mirror, found in 1793 at Paranythia, in Spain. It is as remarkable for wealth of detail as for fitness of craftsmanship. The marking of the veins is distinct and prominent, every lock of hair seems as if it could be blown about by the wind, and the lines of the nose, brows, eyelids, etc., are perfectly finished. Yet the surface is so regular that even with a magnifying glass no toolmark can be detected.

Graphic representations of the Pyramids, as well as fragments of those great sculptural monuments, further add to the wonders of the ancient craftsmen. One of the problems of ages is how the ancient Egyptians moved the great blocks belonging to the Pyramids. The cube containing the greatest weight nearly 7,000,000 tons, and would build a city of 25,000 houses. The ordinary size of the stones in the Pyramids, moreover, are 20 feet long, 5 feet high, and 5 feet wide. The method by which the blocks were transported and put into place has never been discovered.

There are other things which are no less bewildering connected with the Pyramids. For instance, the joining is a perpetual marvel to experts, since it is said that to this day no one has been able to make a joint in the cabinet work. It is amazing even to those who know that 100,000 men were employed for twenty years on the Great Pyramid alone.

Little less curious are such more commonplace objects, such as Roman bronze bowls found in Britain. The puzzle here is this: How did the ancients reduce metals from their ores? At that period there was no other than wood, which was converted by slow burning into charcoal; and though in comparatively modern times iron was reduced by charcoal in Kent and Sussex, scientists do not know by what method the Romans produced their enormous heat and reduced iron from and copper. Apparently their process has been lost forever.

A Thorough Job
In the cook's absence the young mistress of the house undertook, with the help of an inexperienced waitress, to get the Sunday lunch. The hurried maid, who had been dressing in the kitchen with a coffee-cup which refused to work, confessed that she had forgotten to wash the lettuce.

"Well, never mind, Mabel," said the considerate mistress. "Go on with the coffee and I'll do it. Where do you keep the soap?"—Harper's.

Bernhardt's Tomb
Close to her island home, Bellemeur, in the Bay of Biscay, Mrs. Sarah Bernhardt has bought from the French Government for $125 a tiny rocky islet, where she intends to make her burial place. It has long been her habit when travelling to take with her a coffin, and she intends to give personal attention to the planning of her tomb.

Errors On German Stamp

Smiths at Work Are Shown in impossible Positions
Philatelists will run for the new German 45-cent stamp for the year-eyed have discovered more mistakes on it than were possibly ever before committed on the restricted space of a postage stamp.

Three smiths are shown hard at work. Two of them are holding their hammers wrongly, unless one of them is that rarely a left-handed smith. A smith always tucked up his sleeve with the right hand. Not one of the smiths on the stamp is in any impossible position, and a vast piece of iron is held on the anvil in quite the wrong way. While the three men hammer away at it, a small apprentice holds it in place. Such a philatelic comedy of errors is certain to be withdrawn soon.

Stone Trees On Island Of Sardinia

Petrified Trunks Have Been Found Among Mountains
Many thousands, perhaps hundreds of thousands, of years ago there flourished in the island of Sardinia, which lies in the warm Mediterranean of the olive-trees, tall coast, forests of huge trees as large as those in California today.

Amid the geological changes which altered the earth's surface these forests disappeared, and no one until quite recently had any idea that they had left any traces behind. Now among the mountains petrified trunks have been found, and the discovery of these has led to the opening up of whole forests turned to stone.

New Industry In France

Cotton and Wool Being Pulverized for Commercial Purposes
We scarcely think of cotton and wool as a powder, yet there are now half a dozen factories in France, pulverizing cotton and wool for commercial purposes.

Cotton in a finely-powdered form is largely used as a filtering material for substances, such as colloidion, which can only be clarified with difficulty. It is used, also, in the manufacture of rumpomats, to render them less brittle, and has the further advantage of minimizing the vibration which unpleasant twang of gramophone music.

Many new ideas of wool and cotton in this remarkable form are being devised, and in the electrical industry it is invaluable. France has at present a monopoly of the process.

Experimenting With Cure For Seaickness

Frenchman Is Confident That He Will Be Successful
A highly interesting series of experiments is being carried out by Dr. Ponsard, of the Pasteur Institute, Paris, with a view to discovering a cure for seasickness. Ponsard built a curious apparatus which moves exactly like a ship at sea. Experiments with the machine have shown that when subjected to rhythmic oscillations for periods of varying length up to six hours, guinea pigs and hens have shown no physiological effects whatever, while thirty per cent. of dogs subjected to a similar motion developed seasickness. Ponsard is confident that his experiments will lead ultimately to the discovery of a cure.

Automatic Faucet

Of French invention is a faucet that automatically shuts off the water when it is removed from the pipe.

May Postpone Dockage On Horned Cattle

Three Dollar Penalty Put Off Until Next Year
Apparently the proposals of the Toronto livestock commission men to "dock" to the amount of $3 a head all cattle marketed with horns will be delayed a year or more before being put into operation. Producers for the delay are not given, but it is believed that the present position of farming finances has led the authorities at Ottawa to counsel a longer educational effort before any drastic step is taken.

While one sympathizes with the idea that every consideration should be given to the farmers at the present juncture, it is none the less a pity that such an excellent thing for farmers themselves should be left in abeyance. No one who understands will deny the advisability and the cash advantage of docking. The amount of work it involves is little when undertaken at the right time.

Interesting figures on the losses sustained through horned cattle mauling and docking each other in transit by rail and in the pens, have been published at the Windsor stockyards. The losses to the commercial shippers have approached a million dollars a year—that is, this amount was lost to producers because packers would have paid them much more for the same cattle had not buyers lowered the meat sales value.

Night Light for the Hen House

When Properly Used It Greatly Increases Egg Production
Many commercial poultrymen are altering seasonal distribution by the use of artificial lights in their hen houses. A little extra light by itself means nothing to a hen. Lighting is merely an adjunct to the feeding system. If the feed is not good, more light and less than if it were, when used properly the egg production is increased and moulting prevented.

Artificial lighting is a scheme to keep the digestive tract from running out of raw material during the long winter nights. The idea is to keep in mind to give laying hens a maximum amount of sleep and at the same time a maximum amount of food. The so-called "night hen" system of lighting probably best meets these requirements. This means an extra expense of grain from 10 to 15 cents each night.

Very Much Cuck

Three men were travelling in a train in Ireland en route for Cork. The train was late, and, to make matters worse, it was held up frequently by the stations.

At last they reached a station where an inspector came down the train to examine the tickets.
"Where for?" he demanded as he looked into the compartment occupied by the three men.
"Cork," they replied in unison.
"Then you're all Cork," replied the inspector wittily.
"Yes," replied one of the three men.
"And if your train was all Cork, too, maybe it would be easier to draw. At present it's the best stoppage I've seen."

Embarrassing Moment

"Pudger (to new acquaintance):

"No," replied the other.
"By asking her—she is my wife!"

Protest Made Against Labeling Canada In Story And Picture

Our Courteous Prince

People in India Impressed By His Gracious Manners
According to a Reuters cable from Bikaner, the Prince of Wales achieved wonderful popularity there largely attributable, according to a court official, to his gracious courtesy. The natives of Bikaner invariably salute persons of high rank with excessive times and Europeans commonly respect only once. The fact that the Prince never failed to return each salutation has made a profound impression on the people with whom trifles count far more than is generally realized.

An Uncommon Habit

Appreciation Easy to Show If We Feel It
It is not a difficult thing to say with the lips, but saying it right down in the heart is another matter. Really appreciating what people do for us and telling them about it once in a while is not a common habit with many of us as it might be.

As a rule, no persons do so much for us as our own folks do, and few get as little thanks and expressed appreciation for it. We think our mothers ought to be good to use sure to be good to our sisters, and our wives, and our children, and their kindness, and care, and self-sacrificing attention are taken for granted. But to service, never mind how small, ought to be taken for granted in that way that we fail to appreciate the goodness and love that prompts it. Appreciation is the best, and in many cases the only, return we can give for the sympathy and help that come to us from those who are near to us, and that give to life its true joy and satisfaction. And appreciation is easy to show if we really feel it. And usually it is easy enough to feel it if we only take time to think about what other people are doing for us. The more we think about it, the more we realize that it is largely a result of self-interest, thanklessness.

Mineral Mixture For Hogs

Keeps Them In Good Condition During Winter Months
A simple but valuable mineral mixture to keep hogs in condition during the winter months consists of equal parts by weight of air-slaked lime and salt, or of wood ashes and salt. This mixture differs from the simplest one in that bone is added, this addition insuring an abundance of bone-making materials.

A simple but more complete mineral mixture consists of equal parts by weight of air-slaked lime, salt and bone meal (or spent bone black). This mixture differs from the simplest one in that bone is added, this addition insuring an abundance of bone-making materials.

A mineral mixture may be self-fed, free-choice style, or combined with the feed. About a pound per month per hog has been the suggested allowance when hand-fed—J. M. Evans, Iowa College of Agriculture.

French Protest Against Khaki

Members of Parliament have been receiving protests against the decision to substitute khaki for the horizon blue worn by French soldiers throughout the war. But the decision will stand.

The reader of much contemporary

American fiction could scarcely fail to get the idea that Canada is a country peopled almost exclusively by hard-boiled, ignorant inhabitants, garbed the year round in Mackinaw; prospective, bootleggers, dangerous adventures and others of that ilk, who live on some mysterious "northland," where they do nothing but drink whiskey, maybe a tubful of oil! Then these bewhiskered, whiskey-soaked ruffians fight to the death for possession of her. The general atmosphere is one of gloom and every-where-dog sleep, northern lights, intense cold, blizzards, frozen wastes.

And then the "Moose," "Police" "ge" their men. But with this force "getting" does not mean shooting him; it means arresting him and bringing him to trial.

British Columbia has been termed a "sea of mountains," and there is no doubt that every-where-dog sleep, plane passengers will be quite willing to confirm this description.

So Canada is subject to all climate conditions except the tropical; it contains all sorts of people but the blacks. Between its coasts may be found the most advanced and progressive than any on the continent. Within its borders we find all gradations of society, from those who are the most advanced and progressive than any on the continent. Within its borders we find all gradations of society, from those who are the most advanced and progressive than any on the continent.

It would be hard to indicate any particular sphere of activities as being the most characteristic of the Canadian people. In fact, the Canadian people are so diverse that it is hard to indicate any particular sphere of activities as being the most characteristic of the Canadian people. In fact, the Canadian people are so diverse that it is hard to indicate any particular sphere of activities as being the most characteristic of the Canadian people.

We're sure that the "what" operator at Winnipeg and the dry goods merchant of Montreal or Toronto are little distinguishable from their counterparts in Chicago and New York; that the Canadian people are so diverse that it is hard to indicate any particular sphere of activities as being the most characteristic of the Canadian people. In fact, the Canadian people are so diverse that it is hard to indicate any particular sphere of activities as being the most characteristic of the Canadian people.

Valuable Amber Find In B.C.
Hundreds of tons of supposed fossils from the Nicola Valley of British Columbia, turn out on an expert examination to be amber. This is believed to be the first amber discovered on the North American continent. Samples sent to Oldenburg, Germany, for testing have been pronounced good amber.

Grassy Lake

James Franks was at Grassy Lake, on Tuesday afternoon, fined $5.00 with costs, and bound over on his own recognizance in the sum of $500 to keep the peace for a year. The accused appeared before Justices of the Peace Parker Garthurs, of Grassy Lake, and Geo. Lomas, of Burdett, on the charge of committing an assault on John Knibbs by threatening to kill him. The affair arose over damage done to a gate belonging to Knibbs by Franks, who removed some of the wires in it, and the incident took place by the gate. In addition to Franks, who had come up in his buggy, there

According to Knibbs' story, a row took place at the gate, with Franks saying he would kill the other four men, particularly Knibbs. With this, saying, "Let me get to my buggy," he went towards it. Knibbs got between Franks and the buggy, telling Ed Fortin, Jr., to search it. On doing this a 30.30 rifle, loaded with seven shells, was found. Fortin pointed these out and the rifle was handed to Mr. Garthurs to whom all the parties went.

On the charge of damaging the gate, Franks was fined $1 with costs, with $1 damage to be paid Knibbs.
